Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Friday 07 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
More showers today, but turning dry later.

Today:
Chilly start with a few showers around. These showers developing further for a time, possibly turning wintry over higher ground and bringing hail or thunder in the afternoon. Southern and western areas seeing the best of clear and sunny skies. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Tonight:
A dry and clear evening. Small chance of rural frost in the east. Overnight, winds strengthen and heavy rain reaches the southwest by dawn. Temperatures recovering after the early dip. Minimum temperature -1 deg C (30 deg F).

Saturday:
Very wet and windy, especially in the morning. Risk of coastal gales for a time. Rain becoming more confined to west-facing hills later in the day. Maximum temperature 15 deg C (59 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Nights become milder, but remaining windy and unsettled with showers or longer spells of rain throughout. Gales are possible in coastal areas at times.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.